Scouting Beyond a Lifetime

These silent stones speak to a love of Scouting. They are part of the history of Camp George Thomas and lives shared in the brotherhood of the Scouting tradition.

Do you know where they are located at camp and the story behind them?

Each person who camps here becomes a part of a larger story still being written today. We are building on the foundation already laid.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

The patrols of Troop 1 returned to Gilwell for a second weekend of learning and fun. Each patrol occupied a different campsite and took responsibility for cooking its own food and creating shelter.

Bear Necessities

The Bear Patrol welcomed guests to its new den and showed off all the special features including a picnic area, weather rock and horseshoe game.

Judging from the tracks leading into camp, other bears found their way to this welcoming site by the creek during the night.

Out of the Box Foxes

The Foxes are out of their boxes and unpacked. The pink plastic flamingos and other unusual décor are signs of change at this cozy campsite in the woods.

These party animals staged a luau luncheon for important guests and spared no expense in a lovely centerpiece for the table and souvenirs for the guests.

What a Hoot

Members of the Owl Patrol are roosting in Caddo campsite and feathering their nest with a framed photo of an owl inside the Scoutmaster's hut. Perhaps an ancestor?

The hospitable group entertained visitors with sandwiches instead of serving the live mice that they would no doubt prefer.

PATROL REPORTS

BEAR

What is one thing you appreciate about another patrol member?

“Cory is sharp at making the hard decisions but also very personable and a benefit to have.” ~ Denny

“Aaron is a fantastic entertainer. When there’s a down moment, he always has a game or song to bring people together.” ~ Linda Sue

“Denny has a wealth of knowledge and experience. He is an excellent guide and mentor because he freely shares his experience.” ~ Cory

“I appreciate Linda Sue’s sense of creativity and the ability to conform to the group. She has a keen sense of humor.” ~ Aaron

“I appreciate Jeremy’s ability to listen and work with the group.” ~ Randy

“I appreciate Randy’s vision for creating positive change in his unit and not being satisfied with the status quo. He is a visionary.” ~ Jeremy

BEAVER

Beaver Patrol members have found a lot to admire in each other as they have gotten acquainted during the two weekends of WB-2121.

Tommy is appreciated for his tireless effort, leadership skills and being a Good Samaritan. Buddy is a multitasker and the real Mac-Gyver of the patrol. Wendy keeps the moments light and funny by being creative and innovative. Randi is also creative, energetic and gives endless effort. Jim is thoughtful, dependable and resourceful. Chris is diplomatic, friendly and self-deprecating.

The whole group has a fantastic sense of humor.

BOBWHITE

The Bobwhites recognize the strengths their diverse patrol brings to the Wood Badge course by pausing to reflect on traits they value about each patrol member.

Todd Walters— leadership for the last three weeks

Amy McGovern—tech savviness

Edward Sullivan—enthusiasm!

Mike Funk—great stories

Keith Burlison—generosity

Robert Shanley—willingness to help

EAGLE

What do the Eagle Patrol members like about each other? Lots of things!

“I appreciate Tina’s willingness to help out with putting things together for our project presentation and finding us a place to meet.”

“I appreciate Keith’s creativity and enthusiasm in the group and the energy he brings to the Eagle Patrol.”

“Each and every member has qualities that flow alongside what the BSA stands for.”

“As our patrol team begins to melt together, we begin to learn each individual had a great leader under those Eagle eyes. We are testing our wings together and soon the Eagles will soar together and stay together.”

“I appreciate all the patrol’s ability to have no ego and let loose. Because they can be silly and laugh, it helps me let loose.”

“I appreciate Steve and Johnny’s enthusiasm and Ray’s knowledge.”

Ray Williams,
Patrol Scribe

FOX

Members of the Fox Patrol appreciate the skills and talents of each person in the patrol.

Louise appreciates Ryan’s ability to write the patrol’s skits. Greg appreciates Lin’s craftiness in tying woggles. Russ appreciates Doug’s organization and taking care of everything for the conservation project. Lin appreciates everyone’s “diversityness.” Doug appreciates Russ for his Scouting knowledge. And, Ryan appreciates Greg’s smiley face every morning!

OWL

Ryan says, “I appreciate Eric’s happy-go-lucky attitude and crazy antics.”

Monica says, “I love how Eric keeps us laughing! He always keeps the mood light.”

Steve says, “I appreciate the “Let’s have fun attitude” by Eric. It helps keep our Owl family smiling!”

Whitney says, “I love the team spirit that we have all shown through the training. It has really helped to keep me motivated. It is not easy to camp out when you’re pregnant, but everyone has been so helpful.”

Eric says, “I like Whitney’s strength and dedication to be a part of Scouting this far in her pregnancy. It also got me a really good campsite.”

I appreciate my Owl family because they all have been extremely supportive and understanding with me being relatively new to Scouting. They are full of wonderful advice and always willing to lend a hand.

!! Exclusive Interview with Mr. Ed !!

The Owl Patrol has generously included Mr. Ed in its activities. This inter-species relationship is enriching the diversity experience for the Owls who happily roost in the same barn where Mr. Ed is stabled when not at camp.

“We get along great!” says Mr. Ed who joins fully in all the patrol activities. Although language can be a barrier, his neighs and whinnies are readily translated by Wilbur, his Agent/Spokesman.

In the true spirit of Wood Badge, Wilbur notes that “Change is inevitable.” He points out there is plenty of fresh grass for Mr. Ed and the patrol brought apples for him to munch on.

It Takes Teamwork

Mafeking Message

The Beaver Patrol used tubes to deliver a secret message to its goal. They used the 5 Steps of Systematic Problem Solving to finish the task.

Wiggle Woggle

Each person in the Fox Patrol held onto a separate line, but together they maneuvered to carry a ball on a metal ring and drop it in a can. Coordinating the group's movement was a key element.

Nail-Biter

The Bobwhite Patrol successfully completed the challenge of arranging as many nails as possible on the head of a single upright nail. Only one nail may touch the board.

To Solve a Problem

Traffic Jam

Puzzled Bears consider how to move half their group to the right while the other half moves to the left. The exchange requires strategic thinking and cooperation from all team members.

Trolley

The Owl Patrol gets its trolley running smoothly by working together to synchronize movements and avoid feet touching the ground. This is a challenge that requires good communication skills.

Brownsea Island

Members of the Eagle Patrol got too close for comfort in an effort to flip the island over without getting wet. They shared ideas and kept each other on the shrinking dry land. At least nobody was voted off.
